BE INSPIRED! Advertising Feature _____ Grand Variety Concert is on again

LIFE Activities Clubs Victoria, National Seniors Australia and the Office of Seniors will once again combine, with the help of sponsorship from State Trustees, to present an evening of glitz and glamour at the Melbourne Town Hall as part of the Seniors Festival program.

The Grand Variety Concert brings music and madness, comedy and circus, song and dance to the Town Hall stage in what Lindsay Doig, president of Life Activities Clubs Victoria calls "a celebration by, for and of older Victorians... And we want it to go off with bang," he adds.

A highlight of this year's concert, back by popular demand, is international award-winning comedian Sue 'Edith' Ingleton, who had the audience howling with laughter at last year's concert. Joining 'Edith' is much loved singer, writer and media personality, Kaye Sera (pictured), Andrew Dyson with a visually stunning circus act and the brilliant Heidelberg Allstars.

After top class entertainment, the audience is invited to take to the dance floor to dance to music from the 40s to the 60s from Mellowtones and Dr Rock.

Tickets for the Grand Variety Concert to be held from 7 to 10pm on Thursday 6 October, are $20 each and bookings are essential; telephone 9650 6144.
