

STATE TRUSTEES CHERISHED THINGS

SURVEY SNAPSHOT

85%

Victorians feel knowing their family history is important

26%

feel they know their family history extremely well

feel that knowing their family history is important

60% respondents have a detailed family tree

25% parents strongly agree

17% grandparents strongly agree

70%

of Victorians don't know their parents' most cherished stories

74%

of Victorians are not aware of their parents' most cherished items

9/10

grandchildren were not aware of their grandparents' cherished stories

38%

were not aware of their own grandparents' country of origin

54%

were not aware if their grandparents had siblings

55%

were not aware of their grandparents' occupation

51%

were not aware of their grandparents' religious background

60%

didn't know their grandmothers' maiden names

62%

were not aware if their grandparents had fought in a war

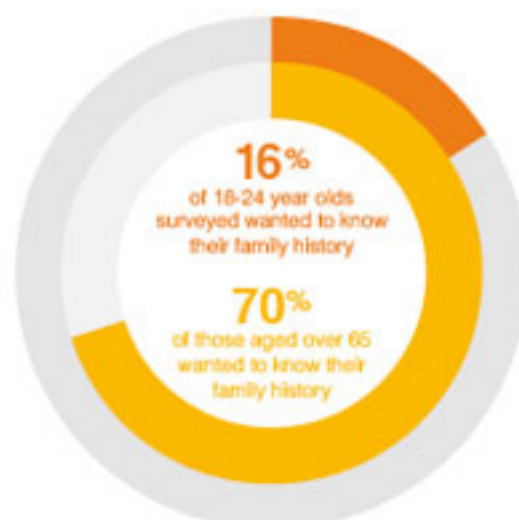

54%

didn't know when their grandparents arrived in Australia

of those surveyed know of cherished things in the family, know the stories behind them and have passed those stories on

1 in 5

respondents agreed that their family strives to maintain their cultural/religious background

15% strongly agree

18% regularly see relatives

