

Are your circumstances simple or complex?

1. Are you getting married in the near future?

(In most cases wills are cancelled by marriage, so if you are getting married soon, we suggest you speak to a Will Writer or wait until after your wedding to write your will.)

2. Do you have any children from a past relationship?

3. Are you separated from your spouse or de facto partner and haven't settled property you own together?

4. Do you have complex assets to include in your will?

("Complex assets" include things like interests in an on-going business, investments in trusts and companies; or assets that are overseas.)

5. Are you planning to leave someone out of your will who expects to be included, or planning to leave someone less than they expect to get.

Complex Will

Simple Will

Yes

to ANY of the questions

No

to ALL

of the questions

TIPS

For simple cases, we recommend simple wills such as Online Will and Will Kit
For complex cases, it's best to consult with a professional Will Writer